

Committed to Care
ena.org

930 E. Woodfield Road
Schaumburg, Illinois, 60173
847.460.4000

February 6, 2025

The Honorable Debbie Dingell
U.S. House of Representatives
102 Cannon House Office Building
Washington, D.C. 20515

The Honorable Jennifer Kiggans
U.S. House of Representatives
152 Cannon House Office Building
Washington, D.C. 20515

Dear Representatives Dingell and Kiggans:

On behalf of the Emergency Nurses Association (ENA) and our nearly 50,000 members, I am writing to express our support for H.R. 929, the Dr. Lorna Breen Health Care Provider Protection Reauthorization Act of 2025, which would continue an important program to help combat burnout and suicide among health care providers, including emergency nurses.

As you know, mental health challenges continue to impact Americans across the country. In 2022, the National Institute of Mental Health reported that more than 23 percent of adults had a mental illness. Among health care workers, including emergency nurses, risk factors for burnout, depression, anxiety, and suicide are compounded by the working conditions faced daily by emergency nurses. High levels of workplace violence, long hours, inadequate staffing and overcrowded emergency rooms put tremendous pressure on these providers. The impacts of these conditions are serious. Many have left the profession, while others suffer from mental health illnesses.

Moreover, health care professionals, including emergency nurses, often feel stigmatized or that their professional future will be at risk if they seek assistance for mental health issues. Beyond the immediate effect on the provider and their family, this reluctance to seek treatment will negatively impact the quality of care received by patients. More can and should be done to promote the mental and behavioral well-being of health care workers risking their lives to care for their communities. By fully supporting these professionals, we allow them to better serve their patients and their communities.

The Dr. Lorna Breen Health Care Provider Protection Reauthorization Act will continue critical grants to raise awareness and provide training for health care professionals in evidence-based strategies to reduce burnout and suicide, and to support mental and behavioral health treatment. The program also includes provisions to examine the broader issue of behavioral health issues among health care workers so we can better understand the root causes of this crisis. We applaud your efforts to enact these programs in 2022 and for taking proactive steps to continue supporting health care workers' mental wellness.

As professionals on the frontlines of our nation's health care system, emergency nurses are critical to providing emergency care to millions of Americans. We must continue to address their mental health needs throughout their careers. We would like to thank you for your leadership on this important legislation. If you have any questions, please contact ENA's Director of Government Relations, Rob Kramer, at 202-465-4756.

Sincerely,

Ryan Oglesby, PhD, MHA, RN, CEN, CFRN, NEA-BC
2025 ENA President